MACM Welcomes Cory Brown as Chief Financial Officer

Veteran insurance executive brings more than 25 years of financial and strategic leadership in the property and casualty industry

RIDGELAND, Miss. — MACM, Mississippi's leading provider of medical professional liability insurance for physicians, today announced that Cory Brown has joined the organization as Chief Financial Officer.

Brown brings more than 25 years of experience in the property and casualty insurance industry, having served in executive leadership roles with insurance carriers, insurance organizations, and consulting firms. His background spans finance, regulation, strategy, and operations. Most recently, he served as Chief Financial Officer of PracticeProtection, a medical professional liability insurance group, where he oversaw finance, accounting, regulatory reporting, strategic planning, and capital management.

Earlier in his career, Brown served with the Georgia Office of Insurance and Safety Fire Commissioner and has consulted with insurance companies across the country on financial, regulatory, and strategic matters.

"We are thrilled to welcome Cory to the MACM family," said Mike Beckett, CEO of MACM. "His depth of experience in insurance finance, regulation, and strategy will be a tremendous asset as we continue to serve Mississippi's physicians with financial strength and exceptional service."

Brown holds a Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance and Risk Management from Georgia Southern University, a Master of Business Administration in Finance from Georgia State University, and a Master of Science in Finance, also from Georgia State University. He holds the Associate in Captive Insurance (ACI) designation.

Brown and his wife, Robin, currently live near Pensacola, Florida, and will be relocating to the Ridgeland area over time. Outside of work, he enjoys traveling, attending sporting events and concerts, and spending time with family. He is also active in his community through Rotary and as a volunteer mentor with Big Brothers Big Sisters of Northwest Florida.

Brown is excited to join the MACM family and looks forward to getting to know the team while helping continue MACM's long tradition of serving physicians with financial strength and exceptional service.
